ABOUT THE CONFERENCE

In today's developing countries, the rise of chronic non-communicable disease such as heart diseases, cancer, diabetics' reflects changes in lifestyle and diet as well as aging. With continuous decline in death rates among the older peoples and the limits of life expectancy and life span are not obvious. Elderly is the critical and final stage of life and our society devalues it in many ways and there is a need to negotiate the issues and challenges of the elderly such as dependency, old age homes(OAH),etc. Aging population tends to have a higher prevalence of physical disabilities, mental illnesses and comorbidities. The health needs and health related problems of elderly people cannot be viewed in isolation. There is a wide gamut of determinants such as social concerns, ill treatment towards elderly, food and nutritional requirements, economic constraints, health care systems etc. This conference will help to promote positive attitudes and approach towards the elderly. Prevention and control of health problems of elderly necessitates a multifaceted approach incorporating active collaboration of health, social welfare, rural/urban development and legal sectors. Provision of quality assured health-care services for the elderly population is a challenge that requires joint approach and innovative strategies. Failure to address the needs of elderly today could develop into a costly problem tomorrow.

AIM OF THE CONFERENCE

- To create a platform to the academicians, researchers and students to share the information and knowledge on geriatric care.
- To identify the emerging issues and challenges of elderly and to share information on innovative interventions to address the same.
